CIA Watched Blacks at Yale, Hartford Courant Reports

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — Previously undisclosed documents show the CIA was keeping an eye on the Black Student Alliance at Yale University in 1970, The Hartford Courant says.

The documents, obtained by a Freedom of Information request, showed the CIA took note of a May 10, 1970, meeting scheduled by the alliance at the Ivy League school, the newspaper said yesterday.

The CIA, which was allegedly monitoring the movement of several black militant groups at the time, found out about the meeting by reading an article in The New York Times, the Courant said.
